

Developing Creative Children's Portfolio Workshop

◆ Overview

Ever wondered what's on the mind of the child? Do you wish to understand a child better? How can I help parents to understand their children? How can I put it all together – understanding children, planning the curriculum, communicating with parents, and evaluating the programme? Are you eager to know and find out more?

Join our Children's Portfolio workshop. This workshop provides information for teachers about classroom assessment and how to use a variety of tools to gather information to create a portfolio of a child.

◆ On completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Identify a variety of tools used in portfolio assessment
- Gather information about the child using these tools
- Interpret and compile information
- Develop a comprehensive observation and record-keeping using portfolio
- Use portfolio for ongoing evaluation and to guide practice
- Communicate information effectively to children, colleagues and parents using children's portfolios

◆ Course Content

- Portfolio as a form of children's assessment tools
- Tracking children's developmental milestones using portfolio
- Effectively interpreting children's work/ progress for use in their portfolio

◆ Programme Leader

Chen Fong Peng, the Head of Early Childhood Faculty at Learning Capital School of Higher Learning, has extensive experience working in child care settings and has been in the field of lecturing in Early Childhood Education since 2003.
